P R E F A C E.

THIS is the second Edition of the Directory of the Three Counties in its present form. It has been found that in the more immediate suburbs of London there is very little demand for the County Directories, whilst there is a continually increasing demand for Annual Local Directories of these places, which have since the last edition of this volume been constituted Metropolitan Parliamentary Boroughs, viz. :—Fulham, Hackney, Hammersmith and Hampstead ; of each of these a Local Directory, price 1s. 6d., is published annually.

The contents are similar to those in previous editions—a general account is given of each County ; Lists of Hundreds and Poor Law Unions are included ; a sketch of the Geological Features of each County, by Mr. W. J. Harrison, is given : then follow the Places in each County, alphabetically arranged, with their Inhabitants, both Private Residents and Commercial ; it is stated under each Parish in what Hundred, Union, and County Court District and Division of the County, as formed under the provisions of the “Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885,” as also in what Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Rural Deanery it is situated ; and the College and University of every Beneficed Clergyman have been given, as far as they can be ascertained : the names of the Parish Clerks are given under each Parish ; lists of Farm Bailiffs of Gentlemen farming their own land are included ; and the population of each place, from the Census of 1881, has been inserted.

A new Map of each County on a large scale is given. A new set of Indices referring to all places and persons mentioned in the Topographies have been given.

The Proprietors have again to return their thanks to those Clergymen, Magistrates' Clerks, Registrars, and other Gentlemen who have assisted the Agents while collecting the information.

ESSEX.

Essex is one of the metropolitan shires and takes its name from the commonwealth of the East Saxons (one of the English hordes which settled in South Britain), and of which Middlesex, London and Hertfordshire afterwards formed part. After the Euskardians and Celts had been driven out, Essex was held by the Belgic tribe of the Trinobantes until the Roman inroad. Of the Romans it was a great seat and here was their city of Camulodunum. The Welch, again becoming masters, were driven out by the East Saxons. The chief clans concerned in the settlement were the Tilling, Halling, Denning, Thurring, Benning, Billing, Horning, Manning, Totting, Bucking and Dunning, being the same as those engaged in the settlement of East Anglia. In 823 it came under the sway of the West Saxons under Egbert, though more than once given up to the Danes.

The county is of an irregular shape, being in its greatest length, from north-east to south-west, 63 miles; it contains 987,632 acres, being the tenth English shire for size. In 1881 its population was 576,434: males, 288,180; females, 288,254; the number of inhabited houses in 1881 was 108,974; uninhabited, 9,224; being built 2,236. On the east and south-east the county is bounded by the North Sea; on the south by the Thames, which flows between it and Kent; on the west by the Lee against Middlesex and by the Stort against Hertfordshire; on the north by Cambridge and on the north-east by the Stour, separating it from Suffolk. On the east the shore is broken by the deep friths and creeks of the Stour, Colne, Blackwater, Crouch and Thames.

* By the rise of the tide is meant its vertical rise above the mean low water level of spring tides.

The Thames flows through London to the North Sea, having several quays, but no great haven on the Essex shore, and the limits of the port of London extend to Havengore creek in this county. The Lee, and its head, the Stort, are navigable, passing through Bishop's Stortford, Harlow and Waltham Abbey: the Roding rises in Easton Park, near Dunmow, and flows south for about 36 miles past Ongar to Ilford, where it becomes navigable, and, passing Barking, joins the Thames: the Bourne brook, 12 miles long, falls into the Thames at Dagenham: the Ingerbourne rises in South Weald and falls into the Thames near Rainham: the Marditch, 12 miles long, forms a creek at Purfleet; the Crouch, 25 miles long, waters south-east Essex and is navigable from Hull Bridge to the North Sea: Burnham is its port: the Bromhill is a creek, 10 miles long, and navigable for 7 miles to near Rochford: the river Chelmer, 46 miles long, rising in the north-west near Debden and flowing south, passes Dunmow and Chelmsford, where it is made navigable, thence east to Maldon (its port), receiving the Ter, 13 miles long, the Wid and Cann, 14 miles long and the Sandon Brook, 10 miles long; near Maldon it joins the Blackwater, which has for its feeder the Podsbrook: the Colne, 35 miles long, rises on the northern border near Birdbrook, becomes navigable at Colchester, and receiving the Roman river, flows into the North Sea: the Holland creek falls into the North Sea at Little Holland: the Stour is about 50 miles long, becomes navigable at Sudbury and passes the ports of Manningtree and Harwich to the North Sea: in the north-west the Cam and Slade brooks pass into Cambridgeshire.

The county has much rich meadow ground on the shores of the brooks and marsh lands on the friths and creeks: on the shore are many marsh islands, like those of Holland; of these Canvey, Foulness, Wallasea, Mersea, Horsea, Havengore and Pottor are the greatest: much of the shore is sheltered against the tides and storms by dykes and sea walls. The inland is hilly and well timbered: the highest hills of the London clay are High Beech, near Waltham Abbey, 760 feet high; Danbury, 497 feet high; Tiptree Heath, near Witham, 700 feet high and Laindon Hills, 620 feet high.

Essex, of which Chelmsford is the assize town, is included within the South-Eastern Circuit. Part of Becontree hundred, viz. Barking, East Ham, West Ham, Little Ilford, Low Leyton, Walthamstow, Wanstead, St. Mary Woodford and Chingford is within the bounds of the Central Criminal Court, and with Dagenham, Chadwell Heath, Waltham Abbey, Loughton and Chigwell, under the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan police.

The shire is ecclesiastically within the diocese of St. Albans and divided into two archdeaconries: Colchester, sub-divided into the rural deaneries of Ardleigh, Brain-tree, Coggeshall, Colchester, Dedham, Halstead, Harwich, Hatfield Peverel, Hedingham, Mersea, Newport, Saffron Walden, St. Osyth, Sampford, Witham and Yeldham; and Essex, sub-divided into the rural deaneries of Barking, Barstable, Canewdon, Chafford, Chelmsford, Chigwell, Danbury, Dengie, Dunmow, Harlow, Ingatestone, Lamborne, Maldon, Ongar, Orsett, Rochford and Roding: Ballingdon, a suburb of Sudbury in Suffolk, is in the diocese of Ely. There are no cathedrals or great endowments.

The county contains 413 civil parishes and parts of 3 others. The Municipal boroughs are:—Colchester, population in 1881, 28,374; Harwich, population 7,842; Maldon, population 7,128; and Saffron Walden, population 6,060.

Other towns are: Chelmsford, population in 1881, 9,885; Braintree, 5,182; Stratford, 36,455; Walthamstow, 21,715; Barking, Witham, Halstead, 5,840; Romford, 7,176; Brentwood, 4,653; Maldon, 5,468; Southend, 7,979, and Woodford, 7,154.

The Essex men are mostly employed in husbandry and stock feeding, and only a few in manufactures of silk &c. at Braintree and Halstead; there is a silk mill at Chelmsford. The minerals worked are chalk for lime, septaria for Roman cement, clay for bricks, and salt made from the sea. Seeds are grown in various parts. The trade of the towns on the shores is in the oyster and other fisheries and in shipping corn, coals and timber. The Colne fishery is of great value and importance; it furnishes the finest native oysters, and belongs to Colchester. The ports of the county are Manningtree, Harwich, Brightlingsea, Colchester, Salcott, Maldon, Bradwell, Burnham, Wakering, Southend, Leigh, Grays, Purfleet and Barking. The Royal Victoria and Albert Docks are in Plaistow Level, and a line connects Thames Haven with the Tilbury line. There are also very large docks at Tilbury, opened in 1836, and connected with London by rail. Steamers run from London to Harwich and communicate with Purfleet, Grays, Tilbury, Southend, Walton and Clacton: Southend and Tilbury are steamboat stations; the boats only run between London, Southend, Walton and Clacton during the summer months. Steamers go up the Orwell from Harwich to Ipswich. Harwich, Southend, Walton and Clacton are bathing places. At Waltham Abbey there are Government powder works, and at Purfleet, powder stores; Warley is a military station and a depôt for recruits; at Tilbury, a garrison; at Colchester is a large camp for infantry and cavalry, and at Shoeburyness an extensive ground for testing Government artillery of the largest calibre.

The railways of Essex belong to the Great Eastern system: one great branch, under the name of the Cambridge line, going from London north, by Stratford, Waltham Abbey, Hoddesdon (with branches to Hertford and Buntingford), Bishop's Stortford and Saffron Walden, to Cambridge, Newmarket and the east of England; and the other north-east, by the Eastern Union line, by Ilford, Romford, Brentwood, Ingatestone, Chelmsford, Witham, Colchester and Manningtree, to Ipswich and Norwich, with branches from Witham junction to Maldon, Braintree and Dunmow, from Marks Tey junction to Sudbury and Bury St. Edmund's and Manningtree junction to Harwich; between these two lines is the line through Leyton, Leytonstone, Woodford, Buckhurst Hill, Loughton and Epping to Ongar and another to Walthamstow and Chingford. In the south-west, a short line runs from Stratford to the Victoria Docks and North Woolwich on the Thames, and another, the London, Tilbury and Southend railway, from Stratford to Barking, Purfleet, Grays, Tilbury (from which is a ferry to Gravesend), Leigh, Southend and Shoeburyness. The new line of the London, Tilbury and Southend railway now (1886) in course of construction from Barking to Pitsea will diminish the distance from London to Southend from 43 to 36 miles. The Tendring Hundred railway runs from Colchester to Wivenhoe, Brightlingsea and Walton-on-the-Naze, with a branch from Thorpe to Clacton-on-Sea. In the north there is also the Colne Valley railway, commencing at the Chapel junction, on the Sudbury branch line, and passing through Halstead and Castle Hedingham to Haverhill, Suffolk. Connection with the Northern and Midland railways is effected via Peterborough.

The Essex and Colchester Hospital stands on the Lexden road, to the westward of the town of Colchester, built in 1820 and enlarged in 1839 and again enlarged in 1879-80 by subscriptions at a cost of £7,000; it is a handsome white brick building with a tower containing a clock and has beds for 94 patients; it is supported by yearly subscriptions, donations and bequests; the average number of in-patients is about 460 and out-patients about 1,230; Lord Carlington, president; Henry Egerton Green and John Bawtree, treasurers; H. J. Gurdon and J. B. Harvey, auditors; C. R. Bree M.D., F.L.S. Alexander Wallace M.A., M.D. consulting physicians; J. H. Partridge, consulting surgeon; Henry R. L. Veale M.D. physician; E. W. Bawtree M.D. physician for out-patients; R. F. Symmons, H. Laver, and E. Worts, surgeons; William Buck, dentist; Benjamin Hugh Nicholson M.B., C.M. house surgeon; Rev. N. P. Gepp B.A. chaplain; Charles E. Bland, secretary; Miss Emma Appleton, matron.

Essex Hall, situated close to the North Railway station, Colchester, was originally erected in the year 1850, as a large railway hotel and is a building in the Italian style, with an ornamental tower and stands in spacious grounds tastefully laid out. Proving unsuccessful as an hotel, Essex Hall was occupied for nine years as a branch of the Earlswood Asylum for Idiots and was subsequently opened in 1859 as an Eastern Counties Asylum, for the care and training of idiots and imbeciles belonging to Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk and Cambridgeshire: the patients are admitted by the votes of subscribers at half-yearly elections, a limited number for life, and the bulk for terms of five years: patients from all parts of the kingdom being also admitted by payment: it has now about 140 patients and is fitted up with everything necessary for the purposes of a training school and home for persons of feeble mind, including gymnastic apparatus and workshops; it has recently been enlarged so as to hold 180 patients. The Marquess of Bristol, chairman; Admiral Luard C.B. vice-chairman; John Bawtree esq.

treasurer; Frederic Bateman M.D. consulting physician; Professor Humphry M.D., F.R.S. and Robert Francis Symmons, consulting surgeons; Charles Caldecott, resident medical attendant; John J. C. Turner, secretary; Edward Williams, superintendent; Mrs. Priscilla Williams, matron.

The County Lunatic Asylum is situated on a fine eminence, about three-quarters of a mile from the Brentwood station and is seen from the Great Eastern Railway: it is in the Elizabethan style, richly decorated, opened in 1853; in 1864 three additional blocks were erected, which accommodate 75 more patients; and in 1871 another block for 250 female patients: and the whole now capable of receiving 800; the wards are spacious and airy and many command an extensive and beautiful prospect: the building is approached from the Warley road by a carriage drive; the grounds by which it is surrounded present, on a small scale, a park-like appearance; there are upwards of 120 acres of land connected with the asylum, part appropriated as a cemetery and the remainder laid out as a farm and kitchen garden and pleasure grounds; the farm and garden are cultivated by the patients; visiting days first and third Thursdays in each month: George Amsden M.B., C.M. medical superintendent; Charles Catterson Smith L.K.Q.C.P. Irel. and John Turner M.B., C.M. assistant medical officers; Rev. Joseph Sowter A.K.C.L. chaplain; William Michael Tufnell, treasurer; Charles Rayner, steward and clerk; Walter Payne Gepp, Chelmsford, clerk to visitors. There is a branch of the Asylum at Brunswick house, Mistley; William Conner, medical attendant; George Clark, attendant in charge.

Her Majesty's Prison, Springfield hill, Chelmsford, erected in 1828 at a cost of £57,289 and enlarged in 1849 and 1871, now contains 361 cells; Major Henry Eyre Wyat Lane, governor; Rev. W. Faithfull Lumley A.K.C.L. chaplain; Rev. Joseph F. Padbury, Catholic chaplain; Edward Hunt Carter, surgeon.

The Thames Reformatory School Ship "Cornwall" is off Purfleet: it was certified May 2nd, 1859; Captain A. Morrell R.N. superintendent.

St. Edward's Reformatory for Roman Catholic Boys is at Boleyn Castle, East Ham, and was certified October 20th, 1870; Rev. W. A. Johnson, Archbishop's house, Westminster, treas.; Dominique Kemp, dir.; Rev. Josph. Zsilkay, chap.

PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION OF ESSEX.

Essex has hitherto returned six members in three divisions, but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," it now returns eight members in eight divisions.

No. 1.—South-Western or Walthamstow division comprises the parishes of Low Leyton, Walthamstow and Woodford. Population, 51,885; electors, 11,225.

No. 2.—Southern or Romford division comprises the sessional division of Becontree (except so much as is comprised in division No. 1) and the liberty of Havering-atte-Bower. Population, 52,690; electors, 12,591.

No. 3.—Western or Epping division comprises the sessional divisions of Dunmow (except the parish of Thaxted), Epping, Harlow and Ongar. Pop. 51,432; electors, 9,239.

No. 4.—Northern or Saffron Walden division comprises the sessional divisions of Freshwell, North Hinckford, South Hinckford (Halstead bench) (except so much as is comprised in division No. 6) and Walden, the municipal borough of Saffron Walden, the Essex portion of the municipal borough of Sudbury and the parish of Thaxted. Population, 50,995; electors, 9,306.

No. 5.—North-Eastern or Harwich division comprises the sessional divisions of Lexden and Winstree (except so much as is comprised in division No. 6) and Tendring and the municipal boroughs of Colchester and Harwich. Population, 51,911; electors, 9,500.

No. 6.—Eastern or Malden division comprises the sessional divisions of South Hinckford (Braintree bench) and Witham, the municipal borough of Maldon, the parishes of Earls Colne and Halstead in the South Hinckford sessional division (Halstead bench) and the parishes of Aldham, East Thorpe, Great Tey, Little Tey, Marks Tey and Pontisbright in Lexden and Winstree sessional division. Population, 51,136; electors, 9,869.

No. 7.—Mid or Chelmsford division comprises the sessional divisions of Brentwood (except the parishes of Rainham and Wennington) and Chelmsford. Population, 54,432; electors, 11,145.

No. 8.—South-Eastern or Tilbury division comprises the sessional divisions of Dengie, Orsett and Rochford and the parishes of Rainham and Wennington. Population, 54,626; electors, 9,367.

By the above mentioned act the boroughs of Harwich and Maldon were disfranchised and the representation of Colchester reduced to one member and the new borough of West Ham formed to return two members in two divisions.

COUNTY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

Elected 1886.

Eastern or Maldon division, Charles Wing Gray esq. Perces, Greenstead Green, Halstead

GEOLOGY OF ESSEX.

THE rocks of Essex have attracted a fair amount of attention from geological observers. The Government Geological Survey has published coloured maps of the southern half of the county, prepared by Messrs. Whitaker, Dalton, Penning, and others, and the examination of the northern portion is also, we believe, completed, although the maps are not yet quite ready for issue: on these maps the various layers or strata of rock are laid down with the utmost accuracy, and indicated by means of various colours.

The geology of the southern portion bordering on the Thames and Lea has been described by Mr. W. Whitaker in his "Geology of the London Basin," and the same author has also published a description of the strata in the north-eastern corner of the county, round Harwich and the Naze. Numerous papers by Professor Owen, Messrs. Brown, Mitchell, Clarke, Charlesworth, Searles, V. Wood, Harmer, Penning, Prestwich, &c., have appeared in the Journal of the Geological Society and the "Geological Magazine." The deposits at Grays and Ilford are favourite hunting grounds of the members of the Geologists' Association, and have frequently been described in their Proceedings.

Geological Formations in Essex.—The county affords a fair diversity of rocks. The strata rest one upon the other with a general inclination or dip to the south-east: a consequence of this is that the lowest (and therefore oldest) beds crop up and occupy the surface in the north-west of the county, and here accordingly we find the white chalk or upper cretaceous strata. Resting upon the chalk, but formed at a much later period, is the lowest Tertiary stratum, known as the Woolwich and Reading beds, above which comes the London clay, and lastly the sandy Bagshot beds. Subsequent comparatively recent deposits of boulder-clay, sand, brick-earth, gravel, &c., repose irregularly upon the eroded edges of the true rock-masses enumerated above.

THE CRETACEOUS FORMATION.—Commencing, then, with the beds of chalk which we have already stated to be the lowest and oldest of the strata which form the county of Essex, we find in the north-west of the county hilly and undulating ground, which presents, though in a less marked manner, the characteristic features of the downs of the south of England. This chalk district extends from the north and west boundaries of the county as far south as a line drawn through Bishop's Stortford, Castle Hedingham, and Sudbury: it is only along the boundary line of Cambridgeshire, however, that the chalk hills make any feature in the landscape, or that we find the white earthy limestone known as chalk actually forming the surface. The Royston downs rise to a height of 400 feet, and from this point to Linton and Haverhill the average height is between 300 and 400 feet. The top of the Rivey, a hill just outside the county near Linton, is 325 feet above the river Cam and 365 above the sea-level. The Lower Chalk is exposed along the western slope of this low escarpment and along the valleys of the little streams that run northwards into the Cam.

The Upper Chalk is distinguished by the presence of numerous layers of flints, which are absent or rare in the beds below. A microscopical examination of chalk reveals the fact that it is almost entirely composed of minute shells of foraminifera, a low class of animals which are, even now, forming a deposit very similar to chalk on the bed of the North Atlantic Ocean. The chalk dips to the south-east and undoubtedly underlies the whole of Essex, rising again to the surface on the south of the Thames to form the hills known as the North Downs. One little patch, however, crops out in the south of the county between Purfleet and Grays Thurrock; here it is largely worked for the manufacture of "whiting," and the flint nodules are employed in making porcelain. Numerous fossils, as sea-urchins of the genera Ananchytes, Micraster, and Galerites, shells, as Terebratula carnea, Inoceramus, &c., and in fact all the ordinary fossils of the Upper Chalk, are fairly plentiful. At Grays the chalk has been proved by boring to be about 660 feet thick, and at Harwich 888 feet.

THE TERTIARY PERIOD.—The chalk was probably deposited at the bottom of a rather deep ocean, and was hardened, elevated to form dry land, eroded, and again depressed, before the next bed of rock was deposited upon its surface. Evidently, then, there must have been a great interval of time between the two, and proofs of this interval are further furnished by the fact that the fossils found in the beds we are now going to describe are of an entirely different nature to those of the chalk, showing that a complete change in the life existing in this region of the earth had taken place. Here then geologists draw one of their great boundary lines, placing the chalk, with certain beds beneath it, in a group denominated the Secondary; beds lower still (coal, slate, &c.) are known as Primary, but the newer, higher strata are denominated Tertiary, or third in order of the stratified rocks.

The lowest Tertiary strata are known as the EOCENE FORMATION, and are subdivided into—

(1.) The Thanet Sands.—Resting on the mass of chalk near Grays we find 20 or 30 feet of fine light-coloured sands, in which few or no fossils occur; they rest on a layer of green-coated flints known to the workmen as the "Bullhead Bed." Mr. Whitaker has lately shown that the Thanet sands also occur at Ballingdon, a suburb of Sudbury, where they are 15 feet thick, and from this point they may extend along the edge of the chalk to Bishop's Stortford.

(2.) The Woolwich and Reading Beds.—These are mottled clays and sands, also seen at Sudbury, above the Thanet sands; thence they run by Shalford and Easton Park to the south of Stortford, where they are well exposed in several brickyards. In South Essex they run from Wennington by Orsett to Stanford. Their thickness is about 40 feet.

(3.) The Blackheath (or Oldhaven) beds also occur near Orsett; they are composed of well-rolled flint pebbles embedded in sand, and are only a few feet thick. Mr. Bristow remarks: "At Hassenbrooke, east of Orsett, the farmer has some very productive strawberry beds, and the fruit, well known for its good quality, fetches a high price. I was told that the produce of 12 acres fetches £100 a week in Covent Garden Market, a price much above what the neighbouring growers can get. The explanation of this difference in quality is, I believe, that the sandy pebble-bed upon which these strawberries are grown makes a soil especially favourable for their cultivation, and that good gardening has little to do with the matter.

(4.) The London Clay.—This is the chief Essex formation. When we descend the gentle eastern slope of the chalk, we see before us a second escarpment, rising in low hills to heights of between 200 and 300 feet above the sea. The lowest portion of the northern slope is composed of the Reading beds, but on the top and stretching thence right away to the mouth of the Thames and the North Sea, we find beds of stiff brownish and bluish clays in which layers of septaria occur: the latter are rounded masses of impure carbonate of lime, usually traversed by cracks, which are filled up with crystals of the same material. In the south-east of Essex the London clay is 480 feet thick, but it thins out considerably as we follow it westwards. Near Harwich the London clay was formerly worked for the septaria which were used in the manufacture of cement. Here, too, it contains numerous small nodules of iron pyrites, which are still collected on the beach near Walton, for the manufacture of copperas, to the amount of about 150 tons yearly. At many places in Essex the London clay is worked for the manufacture of bricks, and sections may be seen near Brentwood Railway Station, Galleywood, Ingatestone, Maldon, &c.

There is a spring at Hockley, the water of which, like much of that from the London clay, contains sulphate of magnesia (Epsom salts). An endeavour was made some years ago to construct a "spa" with "pump rooms," and a woman was employed to dispense the waters whose strong healthy appearance visitors were led to believe was the result of their medicinal effects. In spite, however, of such a strong corroboration of the efficacy of the Hockley waters, the public refused to be cured, and the speculation proved a failure; all that now remains of the spa being the buildings which are still known as "Hockley Spa." Teazles grow well on the London clay, and also the elm, oak, and ash.

(5.) The Bagshot Beds.—These sandy unfossiliferous strata only occur as outlying patches in the southern half of the county: they contain pebble-beds, formed of well-rolled flints only, and are about 25 feet thick: their position is invariably on the high ground and hill-tops, and springs issue from their junction with the London clay below. They occur at High Beech, on the hill of Havering-atte-Bower, and there is a rather large mass which stretches southwards from Shenfield by Brentwood to Warley Common: they form the upper layers of the Brentwood brickfields, are also exposed in the railway cutting there, and the pebble-beds have been extensively dug on Warley Common: other patches occur near Frierning, Stock, Galleywood Common and Rayleigh: they also form the upper part of Langdon Hill, which rises to a height of 388 feet, and can be seen from long distances.

Now the five divisions of the Tertiary Epoch which we have described, viz., the (1) Thanet, (2) Reading, (3) Blackheath, (4) London Clay, and (5) Bagshot beds, are considered by geologists to form the lowest division of the Eocene formation. After the deposition of the Bagshot beds, the area seems to have been elevated so as to become dry land; at all events, there are no traces in Essex of strata of Upper Eocene age, nor of the succeeding Miocene period, which we find well represented in the Isle of Wight and on the Continent.

PLIOCENE FORMATION.—In the Eocene beds only a very few of the fossil shells (about 3¼ per cent.) are identical with species now living: in the Pliocene strata, on the contrary, we find in the lowest beds that one-half of the fossil shells belong to living species, while in the upper portion nine-tenths are precisely similar to existing forms. These Pliocene beds only occur in the eastern counties, where they have received the name of "crag," from the Celtic word creggan, a shell, in allusion to the fact that the beds are almost made up of a mass of comminuted shells.

The Red Crag.—The Lower, White, or Coralline Crag does not occur in Essex, so that the Red Crag rests upon the London clay; it only occurs in the north-east corner, where it is well exposed to the fine cliff sections at Walton Naze. Here we see it to be a coarse, reddish brown and grey sand, full of shells, and showing much false bedding. Harwich cliff had also once a capping of Red Crag, but this has been removed by the encroachment of the sea. Of shell-fish, 148 species have been obtained from Walton, of which 75 are Mediterranean species, showing probably a rather warmer climate than at present.

Coprolite Bed.—At the base of the Red Crag we find a layer of phosphatic nodules, whose valuable fertilising properties were first pointed out by the late Professor Henslow: this bed is worked at Wrabness, Little Oakley, &c., and about 5,000 tons altogether of these coprolites have been raised in Essex.

Chillesford Beds.—At the Naze we see 6 or 7 feet of sandy clay resting on the Red Crag, which may possibly belong to these beds.

PLEISTOCENE FORMATION.—The Drift or Glacial Beds.—Beds of Upper Pliocene age found in Norfolk and Suffolk give plain indications that a colder climate was then beginning to prevail. The Mediterranean shells disappear and are replaced by Arctic forms: still later we enter on a period of severe cold, when icebergs detached from glaciers, which then covered all the north of England and the whole of Scandinavia, came sailing southwards laden with rocks detached from the land over which they rubbed, or the glaciers themselves may have pushed southwards as far as Essex and Middlesex. The Lower Boulder clay then formed in Norfolk, &c., does not occur in Essex: here the first glacial deposits are pebbly gravels and sands — the Mid-glacial Beds. These may mark a temporary diminution in the cold, together with a subsidence of the land: they are overlaid and overlapped by the Upper or Chalky Boulder clay, which reaches southwards to the northern edge of the Thames Valley. Thus it is spread as a surface covering over all the stratified rocks of Essex, except along the bottoms of the river valleys, where it has been washed away, exposing the Mid-glacial gravels beneath. It is a stiff, clayey mass of a brownish hue, full of chalk-pebbles, flints and pieces of rock, containing, too, numerous fossils brought from afar; it often forms a stumbling block to the young geologist, who fails to distinguish it from the stratified rocks which it conceals.

Post-Glacial Beds.—The valleys were probably filled up during the Glacial period, and have since been re-excavated by the rivers which now occupy them. Most of the material so removed has been swept out to the sea; but here and there along the river's course we find beds of fine loam or brick-earth, and again beds of gravel or sand, at varying heights, which have been deposited by the streams at different periods. The brick-earths at Stratford, Ilford, Grays, Copford, &c., have yielded numerous remains of fresh-water mollusca, mainly such as still inhabit the adjoining district.

At Grays, however, a shell known as Cyrena fluminalis occurs, which is now only known in the Nile; at Copford sixty-nine species of shells have been found, three of which (of the genus Helix) no longer inhabit England; from peat-beds exposed in the old brick-yard at Lexden, remains of beetles, mostly of non-British genera, have been obtained. Bones and teeth of the mammoth, of a rhinoceros, hippopotamus, and other extinct species also occur in these brick-earths. A very fine collection of the teeth, bones, &c., of these extinct mammals, made at Ilford by Sir Antonio Brady, has lately been presented by him to the British Museum.

Extensive deposits of sand and mud occur all along the Essex coast, from Shoeburyness to Harwich. At Clacton stumps of trees forming a submerged forest are to be seen at low water, which indicates a subsidence of the coast-line. The slope of the land as it passes under the sea is a very gentle one, and indeed the deepest part of the North Sea between Essex and Holland is only 180 feet, so that a very slight elevation would suffice to render England again, as it has several times been since the deposit of the Eocene beds, a part of the continent of Europe. A well-sinking for water at Clacton-on-Sea in 1878 passed through Post-Glacial Sands, 18 feet; London Clay, 194 feet; Reading Beds, 56 feet; entering the chalk at a depth of 270 feet; the same rock was found to lie 210 feet below the Castle Brewery, Colchester.

Does Coal exist beneath Essex?—It has been pointed out by Messrs. Prestwich, Godwin-Austen, and others, that the coal-beds of Belgium pass westwards to near Calais, trending in a direction which, if continued, would bring them underneath the south of England to the Somerset and Bristol coal-fields, which are supposed to be a continuation of them, as the coal-seams are much alike in quality, number, and thickness. Now a well-boring at Harwich struck dark slaty rocks which we know to lie beneath the coal, at a depth of 1,026 feet, and these rocks had a rather high inclination towards the south. Borings at Kentish Town (1,114 feet), and Meux's Brewery in London (1,000 feet), show on that side also old rocks of Devonian age. Now between these, and consequently underneath Essex, it is possible that a coal basin occurs, hidden deep down under about 1,500 feet of chalk and Eocene strata. This is a most important question for the landowners of Essex, and it is highly desirable that a boring should be made at some suitable point to test the question.

PREHISTORIC MAN.—Several examples have been found in Essex of the flint and stone implements used by the early inhabitants of this country, when as yet metals were unknown. A chipped flint celt or axe, 9 inches long and 3½ broad, was found at Blunt's Hill, near Witham; another specimen, ground at the edge and 6½ inches long, occurred at Stifford, near Grays Thurrock: the same spot also yielded a perforated stone hammer, circular in outline and 3 inches in diameter. At Audley End, a stone pestle like a small club, 9¼ inches long, was found in a gravel pit, with a Roman cinerary urn. A remarkably large flint chip or flake was found in digging the foundations of a house on Windmill Hill, Saffron Walden. Mr. John Evans remarks concerning this specimen: "One face is somewhat flatter than the other, but both faces are dexterously and symmetrically chipped over their whole surface. The small flakes have been taken off so skilfully and at such regular intervals that, so far as workmanship is concerned, this instrument approaches in character the elegant Danish blades. The form seems well adapted for a lance head, but on examination the edges appear to be slightly chipped and worn away, as if by scraping some hard material. It would appear then more probably to have been used in the hand." At Great Easton, near Dunmow, a flint pick or chisel has been found, and a perforated axe-head, made of greenstone, near Colchester. Such were the tools and weapons used by our predecessors in this country up to perhaps 5,000 or 6,000 years ago, when the use of metals was discovered. Doubtless many more specimens would be found if gravel pits and other excavations were watched by intelligent observers.—W. J. H.

DEDHAM, mentioned in the Domesday survey, is a town and parish in the North-Eastern division of the county, Lexden and Winstree union and petty sessional division, Lexden hundred, Colchester county court district, Dedham rural deanery, Colchester archdeaconry and St. Albans diocese, on the navigable river Stour, which separates it from Suffolk, 7 miles north-north-east from Colchester, 4 west from Manningtree, 11 south-west from Ipswich, 59 from London and 3 from Ardleigh station on the Great Eastern railway. The town consists of one main street with three smaller ones branching from it and is situated in a picturesque valley. The church of the Virgin Mary is a large building chiefly of brick and rubble in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles and a fine battlemented western tower of flint, 131 feet in height, surmounted with 4 pinnacles and containing 8 bells: this church was founded at the beginning of the sixteenth century by Thomas and John Webbe, father and son, both woollen manufacturers, whose merchants' mark, with the badges of York and Lancaster, appears on the tower: in the north aisle is the founders' tomb, which is a canopied monument of stone in a good state of preservation; the brass which bore the inscription is lost, but the date is supposed to be 1523: on the south side of the chancel there is a recess, now used as a credence table, which is traditionally said to have been an oven used for baking the sacramental bread, there being a chimney leading from it: in the wall of the south aisle is the staircase which formerly led to the rood loft: the font, which is much mutilated, bears traces of carving: the north door is of carved oak, but imperfect, some figure of saints in canopied recesses having been removed: the chancel was restored in 1880, when a carved stone reredos and sedilia were introduced: the piscina is ancient: there are seven stained windows: the church was re-seated in 1861 and the bells were re-hung lower down in 1881. The register dates from the year 1560. The vicar has in his possession a list of the vicars of Dedham from the fourteenth century to the present time. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £130, with 1½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Duchy of Lancaster, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Charles Alfred Jones M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, formerly chaplain of that college. There is a lectureship here, founded by the Rev. William Burkitt and others and endowed with great tithes commuted at the sum of £500 yearly, certain glebe lands and the sum of £25 consolidated £3 per Cent. Annuities, standing in the name of the official trustee of charitable funds: under a new scheme of the Charity Commission, dated Jan. 28th, 1870, the trustees appointed for the administration of this charity are the same as those forming the governing body of the Dedham Grammar School: this lectureship, yearly value £275, with residence, has been held since 1872 by the Rev. Hamilton Ashwin LL.D. of Trinity College, Dublin. The Royal Free Grammar School was founded in 1571 by William Littlebury and chartered by Queen Elizabeth in 1574: exhibitions to the annual value of £90 are awarded to students proceeding to any university or place of scientific or professional education and are called "Cardinall Exhibitions:" the governing body consists of 12 persons, of whom 2 are county governors, 4 representative and 6 coöptative: the gross yearly income is now (1886) about £400. The school called the "English school," founded in 1599, is now amalgamated with the grammar school: a new scheme for the administration of this foundation was confirmed in November, 1873 and came into effect in January, 1885: by it the school is recognized as first grade and the tuition fees vary from £12 to £20 yearly for each boy attending: an artesian well has been sunk upon the grammar school property at a depth of 155 feet and affords a plentiful supply of good water. An educational establishment for young ladies, healthily situated in this picturesque village, is conducted by Mrs. H. G. Nicholls. There are chapels for Congregationalists and Primitive Methodists. Dedham formerly had a market and in the reign of Richard II. and up to the end of the sixteenth century was famous as one of the chief seats of the clothing trade. There are 12 almshouses, called Dunton's, founded in 1517 by Stephen Dunton, of Dedham, and endowed by William Littlebury in 1571 for old and decayed tradespeople; they are now occupied by 20 persons, each of whom receives from 1s. 6d. to 3s. weekly, coals and wood being found free of charge. Barker's, founded in 1863 by Samuel Barker, of Bedford square, London, a native of Dedham, for aged spinsters, have six inmates, each of whom receives 6s. weekly; there are six Chapel almshouses, founded in 1834, by Mrs. Mary Barfield, of Colchester, for aged widows; of the six almswomen, four receive 5s. weekly and two others 4s. weekly: Chapman's charity, derived from land in Ardleigh, now (1886) let at £50, was left in 1657 by John Chapman, of Dedham and is distributed yearly: Betts' charity, of £15, left in 1825 by Edward Betts, of Dedham, is distributed yearly in coal. Stour house, an Elizabethan mansion, built in 1868 and the seat of William Herbert Dunnett esq. is situated on the side of a hill, with a commanding and picturesque view of the vale of Dedham, the river Stour and surrounding country. The Rookery, an ancient residence, the seat of William Henry Penrose esq. J.P. is pleasantly situated on the banks of the Stour. The Hill House, Dedham Park, the seat of Hatfield James Back esq. is a modern house. There are two manors in the parish of Dedham, viz. Dedham Hall, attached to the Duchy of Lancaster, and Over Hall and Nether Hall, of which Francis Smythies esq. of Colchester, is lord. The principal landowners are the Eyre family, William Henry Penrose esq. J.P. Felix Francis Davey, Hatfield James Back, William Herbert Dunnett and H. R. Edwards, Charles Booth and Robert Scott esqs. The soil is mixed, principally mild loam; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 2,558 acres; rateable value, £8,108; the population in 1881 was 1,745.

Parish Clerk, Henry Hitchcock.

LEYTON (or Low LEYTON) is a parish, in the South Western division of the county, Becontree hundred, rural deanery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Alban's, West Ham union, Bow county court district and is within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court and Metropolitan Police, $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles from London, with a station on the Great Eastern railway : it is governed by a local board of health, consisting of 15 members and adjoins Walthamstow and Stratford, being pleasantly situated on the banks of the river Lee, from which its name was derived : it was a Roman settlement and is supposed to be the site of the ancient Duroilitum mentioned by Antoninus ; many Roman antiquities, including the foundations of buildings, mortised timber, a subterranean arched gateway, wells and coins, both brass and silver, of the Consular and Imperial times, together with some silver Saxon pieces, were discovered in 1718, in the vicinity of the Manor house. The church of St. Mary is a plain building of brick in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower containing a clock : all the windows are stained : in the chancel is a memorial to John Strype, the celebrated historian and antiquary, who held this vicarage for 68 years and was buried here in Dec. 1737, at the age of 94 : in the north aisle is the monument of Charles Goring, second and last Earl of Norwich, who died in 1670-1 : in the tower is a monument to Sir Michael Hickes, who for some time resided at Ruckholts, and died there in 1612, and his wife ; the lower portion projects from the wall, and is panelled and adorned with heraldic achievements ; on the top are effigies of both reclining on their elbows, with their feet together in the centre, and their heads outwards; a double arched screen, with inscriptions, rises at the back; here also is a similar, but more lofty monument to Sir William Hicks, 1680, with a reclining effigy in a court suit, wig and ruffles; and at either end standing figures of his wife and son; there is a third monument to his son, Sir William Hicks, 1703, and Martha Agnes (Coningsby) his wife, 1723: here, too, was buried William Bowyer, the printer, who died Nov. 18th, 1777, and Sir John Strange, Master of the Rolls, who died May 18th, 1754: there are brasses to Ursula Gasprey, 1493, with two Latin verses; to Tobias Wood esq. and his wife, with 7 sons and 5 daughters, c. 1620; to Lady Mary, wife of Sir William Kyngestone, 1755; and to Robert Rampstone, 1585, who left 20s. for the poor: near the vestry door is a mural tablet to Sir Robert Beachcroft kt. Lord Mayor, 1721; and there is a memorial to Sir Richard Hawkins, 1735: there are 800 sittings, of which 400 are free. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1575; burials, 1617. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £340, with one acre of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Rev. E. J. Brewster LL.D. vicar here 1873-80; and held since 1880 by the Rev. James Lunt M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. All Saints' church, formerly a chapel of ease to the parish church, but assigned to a separate district in Jan. 1886, is a plain cruciform building of brick and stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts and south and west porches, and was erected by subscription in 1864, at a cost of about £3,000, and consecrated Jan. 1865: the east window and two others in the chancel are stained: these, together with the reredos of Caen stone and alabaster, were the gift of the Capper family. The living is a perpetual curacy, yearly value derived from free-will offerings, in the gift of the vicar of St. Mary's, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Charles Edmunds M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Here are Baptist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels, also a preaching room belonging to the Plymouth Brethren. There is a metropolitan police station in the Lea Bridge road, and a volunteer fire brigade with a station in Church road. The almshouses belonging to the London Master Bakers' Pension Society are in the Lea Bridge road, and in the Church road are eight almshouses, bearing the following inscription. "These almshouses, at the request of the Rev. James Lunt M.A. vicar, were rebuilt on an improved plan in the year 1885, at the cost of the surviving members of the family of the late Mr. John Hibbert, being old inhabitants." The buildings are of flint stone. There are charities producing £77 yearly, distributed in bread. Sir Thomas Roe, an oriental traveller, of Magdalen College, Oxford, was born here in 1580, and was knighted at Whitehall, July 23rd, 1603; in 1614 he was sent as ambassador to the Great Mogul, and in 1621 to the Sultan of Turkey; he died in Nov. 1644. There are several fine old houses: Eltoe house, long the residence of the late Cardinal Wiseman, is in Church road; Ruckholt house was formerly the seat of the Hicks family. The Rev. John Pardoe B.A. rector of Gravelly, Herts, is lord of the manor; the principal land-owners are J. B. Barclay esq. Earl Cowley and S. R. Bosanquet esq. The area is 2,331 acres of land and 39 water; rateable value, £143,563; the population in 1861 was 4,794, in 1871, 10,394, and in 1881, 23,016, including Leytonstone. The population of Leyton local board district in 1881 was 27,068.

KNOTTS GREEN and Lea Bridge are the names of localities in the parish, formerly regarded as hamlets; at the latter is a station on the Great Eastern railway, and at the former is Mr. J. G. Barclay's observatory.

At RUCKHOLTS, obscured by trees, are the remains of ancient entrenchments, with a square double embankment, 100 feet in diameter, secured by a moat.

LEYTONSTONE is a hamlet of Leyton, running parallel to it, with many suburban villas and a station on the Great Eastern railway and is a separate ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1854, 2 miles north from West Ham and 5½ from Whitechapel, on the road from Stratford, over the Forest, to Epping and Ongar; it is in the South-Western division of the county, Bow county court, West Ham union, rural deanery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex, diocese of

St. Albans and is in the Eastern Metropolitan postal district, the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court and Metropolitan Police. The church of St. John the Baptist, erected in 1843, is a building of white brick with stone dressings, consisting of small chancel and nave, and a light and graceful western tower with four crocketed pinnacles containing a clock and 6 bells: the east window is stained: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1838. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £304, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans and held since 1874 by the Rev. William James Bettison M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, and surrogate.

HARROW GREEN is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1879 from the parishes of Leytonstone, Leyton, Wanstead, West Ham and St. Paul, Stratford New Town. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected in 1878, at a cost of £6,600, is a building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave and aisles: there are 800 sittings, all free. The Sunday schools adjoining were erected in 1884 at a cost of £2,300. The register dates from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Albans and held since 1876 by the Rev. Henry Ferdinand Battiscombe T.A.K.C.L.

The William Cotton Memorial church (St. Andrew's), Colworth road, is now (1886) in course of construction from funds partly subscribed, grants made by the members of the Cotton family and other grants from the Bishop of St. Albans' fund and the Incorporated Church Building Society. The cost of the church, constructed of Kentish rag with Bath stone dressings, is estimated at £8,000; A. W. Blomfield esq. M. A. being the architect; the site was given some years ago by the members of the Cotton family: the Rev. William Manning M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, is curate-in-charge.

The Congregational church is a handsome building in the Lombardo-Gothic style, erected in 1877-78, from designs by Mr. J. Lewis Banks A.R.I.B.A. of Finsbury circus: the cost, including site, was between £8,000 and £9,000: there are sittings for 1,000. The London City Mission Hall, erected near the High street in 1885, at a cost of £3,000, has sittings for 400 persons. There is also a Wesleyan Methodist chapel in High road and a Baptist chapel in Fairlop road, built in 1877, attached to which is a school house and lecture hall. St. Patrick's Catholic cemetery, of 11 acres in extent, is situated in Union road and was formed in 1861 and has one mortuary chapel. The Good Shepherd Children's Home, in Davis lane, was founded by Miss Cotton in 1865 and is certified to receive 40 children. The West Ham union house is situated here; for particulars of Union see West Ham. The population in 1881 was, St. John the Baptist parish 8,212, including 453 in Bethnal Green Workhouse Industrial school; Holy Trinity parish 8,383.

Parish Clerk, St. John the Baptist, Henry John Emerson, High road; Holy Trinity, J. Wrench, verger.

STRATFORD.

STRATFORD (OR STRATFORD LANGTHORNE), the ford of the street or Roman way from London to Colchester, within the Northern division of the new Parliamentary borough of West Ham, is a suburb of London and lies on the east side of the navigable river Lea and on the Great Eastern railway, whence the Colchester; the Cambridge; the Blackwall and North Woolwich; the Woodford and the Tilbury and Southend lines of railway diverge: there are three stations, viz. Stratford central station, Stratford Market and Maryland Point: it is $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Shoreditch, and is a ward of the parish of West Ham, in the union of that name and within the jurisdiction of the central criminal court and metropolitan police, in the Bow county court district, rural deanery of Barking, archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of St. Albans and in the eastern metropolitan postal district: it is united to Stratford-le-Bow, in Middlesex, by a bridge over the river Lea: tramways are laid down from the Broadway to Aldgate and from the Broadway to Leytonstone and on the Romford road, to the "Princess Alice." Stratford is included in the local board district of West Ham.

St. John's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1844 from the mother parish of West Ham; the church, situated in the centre of the town, where the main road from the east of London diverges towards Romford and Leytonstone, was built in 1834 as a chapel of ease to the parish of West Ham, and became a parish church about 1859; it is a building of stone and brick in the Early English style, and was erected at a cost of £23,000, of which £18,000 was raised by subscription and the remainder advanced on security of the rates; the church consists of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower, containing 1 bell: the site was given by the late Lord Mornington, then Tylney Long Wellesley Pole esq. of Wanstead and T. Humphreys esq. lords of the manor: there are sittings for 1,000 persons. The register dates from the year 1859. The living is a vicarage, so constituted in 1868, nett yearly value £310, in the gift of the vicar of West Ham, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Raymond Percy Pelly M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The area is 301 acres; the population in 1881 was 13,502.

Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1852 from the mother parish of West Ham: the church, situated in High street and erected in 1851, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower with spire containing 1 bell. The register dates from the year 1852. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £304, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Charles William Servanté. The area is 405 acres; the population in 1881 was 9,710.

STRATFORD NEW TOWN, formerly called HUDSON'S TOWN, is a part of Stratford, adjoining the Angel Lane railway station. In this district are the works of the Great Eastern railway, employing upwards of 3,000 men.

St. Paul's, Stratford New Town, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from the mother parish of West Ham, in 1865. The church, situated in the Maryland road, is a plain brick building, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, aisles and a turret containing 1 bell: there are sittings for 1,250 persons, half of which are free. The register dates from December 10th, 1864. The living is a vicarage, nett yearly value £200, in the gift of five trustees, and held since 1877 by the Rev. William Spencer M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford, who resides at 6 Forest lane. The area is 236 acres; the population in 1881 was 13,243.

There is a Presbyterian church in the Leytonstone road.

The Catholic church of St. Francis of Assisi, erected at a cost of £6,000, and opened May 12th, 1868, is a rectangular building in the Italian style, with a small tower over the porch containing 1 bell, and will seat 400.

The Congregationalists, Baptists, Primitive Methodists, United Free Methodists and Wesleyans have chapels here.

The Town Hall, situated in the Broadway, Stratford, is a building of stone and brick in the Italian style, from designs by Messrs. L. Angell and J. Giles, and was opened July 7th, 1869, by Sir Thomas Western, lord lieutenant of the county. In 1886 the building was greatly enlarged and entirely re-decorated: the large hall on the first floor will hold 1,000 people and has retiring rooms attached to it: there is also a minor hall or board room on the ground floor. The façade towards the Broadway, 102 feet in length, has two principal storeys, from which in front of the entrance is projected a colonnade of rusticated work, rising into a spacious balcony supported on columns and terminating in a balustrated parapet, with groups of statuary: above this is a supplementary storey similarly treated; to the right of the main building is a well-proportioned tower 100 feet in height, crowned by a coved domical roof, supporting a small turret and vane: the principal front is of stone, the portico and other portions being adorned with polished columns of red granite: this building is occupied by the officers of the local board, engineer and surveyor, vestry clerk and of various local collectors: on the west side is a fire brigade station, and a new building has been erected at the back for the use of the inspector of nuisances and his staff, and includes a residence for the superintendent of the fire brigade.

In 1881 John Rowland Phillips esq. was appointed Metropolitan police magistrate for the West Ham local board district. The Court House, situated in West Ham lane, in rear of the Town Hall, was erected by the local board and opened November 9th, 1886: it is a building of picked stock brick work, relieved with brick quoins and stone cornices and dressings, from designs by Mr. Lewis Angell, architect, and comprises a court room, magistrates' and clerks' offices and retiring rooms, solicitors' and public waiting rooms, lavatories and caretakers' apartments, together with offices for the police and cells for prisoners.

The Martyrs' Memorial, erected in St. John's churchyard in 1879 by public subscription "to perpetuate the principles of the Reformation and to commemorate the deaths of 18 Protestant martyrs, burned in this neighbourhood for the pure faith of Jesus Christ," is a hexagonal structure of stone and terra cotta, in the Early English style, raised on a similarly shaped platform of four steps; each of the six sides is surmounted by a boldly projecting canopy, supported on clustered shafts, and above all rises a ribbed spire, terminating in a finial, encircled by a crown, the whole being 65 feet high. One of the sides is adorned with a sculptured panel reproducing a plate in Foxe's Martyrology, representing the burning of 13 of these martyrs at Stratford, on

WEST HAM LOCAL BOARD.

Offices, Town hall, Broadway.

Members of the Board.

CHURCH ST. WD.	STRATFORD WARD.	PLAISTOW WARD.
Rivett George (chairman)	Hay George	Adamson Michael
Harris George	Jex Edward	Barry Henry
Helmere Wm.	Knight Thomas	Fielder Robert
Jones George	Mitchell Adam	Hooper Wm. Hy
Maw James	Smith Frederick	Worland Henry
Morley John	Tharp Wm. Ant.	Worland James

the site of the present churchyard, on Saturday, June 27th, 1556: the remaining sides bear inscriptions including the names, ages, social position, and date of execution of all the martyrs commemorated: Mr. J. T. Newman was the architect.

The local board have established a local fire brigade which consists of 1 chief superintendent and 20 men, 3 fire stations and 4 escape stations: they are distributed as follows:—No. 1 station (Stratford) with a steamer, manual hose cart and escape, 1 officer and 7 men; No. 2 station (Barking road) with a steamer, hose cart and 2 escapes, 1 officer and 8 men; No. 3 station (Forest gate) with a hose cart and escape, 1 officer and 3 men. A fire escape is also stationed at Plaistow Broadway.

On the river Lea are flour mills, chemical and print works, artificial manure factories, soap and candle works, vesta and match manufactories and distilleries. A market for vegetables, fruit, roots and straw, has been established by the Great Eastern railway company, adjoining the Stratford Market station, and warehouses and sidings have been constructed for the development of the trade in vegetables from the Eastern counties.

The population of the Stratford ward in the West Ham local district in 1881 was 38,636 and is now (1886) estimated to be 43,400; rateable value about £172,000.

The Cistercian abbey of Stratford Langthorne was founded here by W. Montfichet in 1134 and dedicated to St. Mary and All Saints: the abbot was a lord of Parliament and the income at the dissolution was £573 15s. 6d.: there are now no remains of the building, except perhaps at the abbey mills. George Edwards, the naturalist, was born here 3rd April, 1693, and was also buried here on 23rd July, 1773.
